

BROOKLYN NEWS.

DRIVEN FROM THEIR HOMES.

Foul Sewage in the Cellars of Brooklyn Houses.

Inmates Fly from the Stench and Appeal to the Authorities.

The water and refuse in the big sewer in Stanhope street between Knickerbocker and Hamburg avenues, Brooklyn, overflowed this morning and flooded the cellars of adjoining property to such an extent that some of the residents were forced to abandon their homes.

The cellars of the houses from 175 to 185 Stanhope street continued about four feet of sewage at 9 A. M., and the water was gaining rapidly. The streets in the vicinity were all flooded, and there was more or less water in all the cellars in the neighborhood.

As soon as City Works Commissioner White arrived at his office he found a delegation of excited residents from Stanhope street, who had come to demand immediate relief.

Among those present were Mrs. Koehler, Mrs. Enderle, Mrs. Kircher and Mrs. Fahl. The women declared that they would bring suit against the city unless relief was sent immediately. They said that the sewer gas and odor from the refuse in the cellars made it impossible for them to return to their homes. They had all been forced to remove their families to the homes of neighbors living outside the flooded district.

In No. 177, the women said, Mrs. Koehler was lying in a serious condition with a baby only a few days old. She was too ill to be moved and might die. A corps of men was at once detailed to repair the damage.

DIAMOND EARRING IDENTIFIED

Mrs. Stentel Has the Mate of the Three-Carat Gem.

Edward Stentel, of 13 Mogrope place, Brooklyn, called at Police Headquarters this morning and claimed the three-carat diamond earring which has been in the custody of the Lost-Property Clerk since May 22.

Mrs. Stentel was accompanied by his wife, who identified the earring as her property, and she corroborated her statement by showing the mate to it, which was an exact counterpart of the lost gem. The diamond was not turned over to the claimant, although identification and establishment of ownership seemed to be complete.

The earring was lost May 22 somewhere in Brooklyn. Mrs. Stentel had been in the habit of carrying the earring in a chamber bag instead of wearing them. On the day on which she lost the earring a policeman from the Mulberry street station arrested John Curran, of 31 Dean street, Brooklyn, and August Mulcahy, of 25 Henry street, Brooklyn, as suspicious characters. They were seen visiting several jewelry pawnshops by the officer, and were taken to the station-house. The earring in question was found in Curran's pocket. He said he found the jewel, and as there was nothing to disprove the statement, he was discharged. The police Court, after being held three days.

A BRIDE BECOMES A WIDOW.

Mrs. Schmidt's Sudden Sorrow May Drive Her Mad.

Mrs. Frank Schmidt, who was married last week, is already a widow, and to-day is living at her home, 52 Monell street, Williamsburg, suffering from nervous prostration. Her physician says she may be a maniac for life.

At 6 P. M. yesterday the woman was preparing supper for her husband when a policeman from the Stagg street station arrived, and bluntly told her that her husband was dead. Mrs. Schmidt fainted and since has been delirious.

Schmidt's death was peculiarly distressing. He left his home in the afternoon, telling his wife that he thought a plunge in Newtown Creek would cool him off.

When he reached the foot of Stagg street he found a number of other men. He was the first to disrobe, and with the remark that he would beat them all into the water, made a running dive.

The dive was straight down, and Schmidt went up to his waist in the thick mud that forms the bottom of the creek. The men on shore saw a commotion under the water for a few moments and then all was still.

After some time the watchers realized the fate of the unfortunate young man, and a search for the body was made, but it was not recovered for several hours.

"GOT WHAT HE DESERVED."

Brogan Says He Will Not Prosecute Sharkey for Assault.

Bernard Sharkey, a mat manufacturer, of 46 Marcy avenue, furnished bonds in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day for his appearance when wanted on a charge of assault.

Yesterday afternoon James Brogan returned to his home, 288 Hooper street, suffering from several scalp wounds. He told his mother that he had been assaulted by Sharkey, who formerly employed him. Then Brogan became unconscious. He was removed to the Eastern District Hospital, where at first it was thought he was dying.

An "Evening World" reporter was told at the hospital this morning that Brogan could not attend court, but that his recovery was only a matter of a few days.

Brogan declares that he will not press the charge against Sharkey, saying that he only got what he deserved. The mat manufacturer admits having assaulted Brogan, but says he did it in self-defense.

STRUCK A POLICEMAN.

Then the Bluecoat Thrashed Negro King and Locked Him Up.

Justice Goetting, in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day held William A. King, a negro, on a charge of assaulting Policeman John Kessell.

King has a bitter animosity against policemen, and has several times gotten into trouble through his assaults upon them. Last night he met Kessell at Rodney and South Second streets and struck him in the face.

Kessell was off duty and without his club, but he used his fists with effect and thrashed the negro thoroughly. Then he locked him up.

"NO USE FOR WASHINGTON."

Williamsburg Man Says Coxe Is Only a Flee-Closer.

George Hostetter, who says he lives at Broadway and Hooper street, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day, on a charge of intoxication, and while he is in the Tombs Street Jail his mental condition will be inquired into.

Hostetter attracted attention this morning by gravely parading up and down Grand street, near Union avenue. In his hat was a shamrock, while a large American flag was carried over his right shoulder.

"Coxe is only a flee-closer compared with me," he shouted. "I am Hostetter. All are invited to come with me. Our home is the North Pole, and we have no use for Washington."

When Officer Gallagher arrived, Hostetter was singing hymns, and he was highly offended when told to move along. He then threatened to expose his pills, and have the officer dismissed. He was locked up.

When arraigned in court Hostetter insisted upon shrouding his flag, and wanted to discuss the financial condition of the country with Justice Goetting. He was greatly surprised when he was taken into the pen, and his wild howls disturbed the court proceedings for some time.

CLERK AND MONEY GONE.

Unlike the Cat, Tannes, Who Went to the Lodge, Never Came Back.

Henry Kuevers, a grocer, of 821 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, notified the police to-day that his clerk, Frank Tannes, had disappeared. Tannes left the grocery store on Sunday night, saying he was going to a lodge meeting. He has not been heard from since. Kuevers says the clerk had with him $20, all the money taken in over the counters last week.

Tannes is described as thirty-five years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height, 150 pounds, light complexion, hair and mustache. He wore black clothing and a derby hat.

A POLICEMAN SUSPENDED.

Charged with Making an Improper Arrest While Intoxicated.

O'Connor Accused Brooks of Helping a Prisoner to Escape.

Policeman John R. O'Connor, who is detailed as engineer of the Brooklyn police boat Judge Moore, was suspended this morning pending trial on charges of getting drunk and improperly arresting Edward Brooks, of 135 Hoyt street.

O'Connor was on his way last evening to visit his mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Martin, who lives on Hoyt street, near Warren. As he was entering the house, he says, a young man named Michael Hanrahan, of 135 Hoyt street, followed him and asked:

"Who's the dame you were coming down the street with?"

"I had no woman with me," O'Connor replied. O'Connor says that Hanrahan then struck him in the face with his fist and knocked him down. As he scrambled to his feet he grabbed his assailant, and they had a sharp struggle.

He says he did not see Hanrahan, a policeman, and that he was going to lock him up. Hanrahan broke away and ran to his own house. O'Connor followed, but by the time he reached the doorway the fugitive had escaped.

Brooks was coming downstairs at the time, and in reply to O'Connor, said he had not seen Hanrahan, and did not know where he could be found.

Then I'll arrest you, said O'Connor, and he marched Brooks to the Butler street station, where he accused the prisoner of assisting another prisoner to escape. Capt. Levey, who was present, saw O'Connor was drunk, and ordered him to take Brooks to the Amity street station. Capt. Levey accompanied him to the station and called Sergt. Toole's attention to O'Connor's condition.

Sergt. Toole examined the policeman, and on becoming satisfied that O'Connor had been drinking, he released Brooks and detained O'Connor in the station-house. On hearing the facts Capt. Druhan suspended O'Connor.

PROBING A COLLAPSE.

Inspector Gilmartin Under Arrest for the Latimer Crash.

Frank Gilmartin, an inspector in the Brooklyn Building Department, was arrested this morning on a warrant issued by Coroner Kene, on a charge of manslaughter.

Gilmartin issued a permit for allowing F. B. Latimer to replace the beams in a storage warehouse building at 201 and 203 Atlantic avenue, without first inspecting the building, as required by law.

May, while these repairs were being made, the building collapsed, causing the death of Emil Erickson and injuring several others.

Coroner Kene concluded the inquest on the death of Erickson last night. The jury brought in a verdict censuring Gilmartin and advising his arrest.

When arraigned before the Coroner this morning Gilmartin's $5,000 bail was set at $2,500. He was held until Mr. Ryan qualified as bondsman.

NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY WOMEN CAN'T VOTE.

The Courts Decide that Their Ballots Do Not Count.

The New Jersey courts have just decided that women have no right to vote. This decision is the result of a contest between William O. Allison and Clinton H. Blake for Road Commissioner in Eaglewood.

The election was held April 4, 1893, and Mr. Blake received forty-two votes, twenty of which were cast by women. Mr. Allison received twenty-six votes, of which only three were cast by women freeholders.

Mr. Allison contested the legality of the female vote, and the case, after being argued before the Supreme Court of New Jersey, has been decided in Mr. Allison's favor. All the votes cast by women were thrown out, and Mr. Allison has been declared elected by one vote.

This right of male citizens to vote, Justice Beasley holds, cannot be extended any more than it can be abridged by legislative enactments. Under this decision women will be debarred from voting for school trustees in the future.

Mr. Blake, who has been acting as Road Commissioner for more than a year, will now have to turn over the office to Mr. Allison.

HIS MONEY WAS BAD.

A New York Man Held for Passing Spurious Coin in Jersey City.

John Dalton, nineteen years of age, of 633 Seventh avenue, New York, was a prisoner before United States Commissioner Romaine, in Jersey City to-day, charged with passing counterfeit money.

Yesterday afternoon Dalton went into stores kept by James Smith, on Newark and Jersey avenues; Jacob Moebroe, on Jersey avenue and First street, and Cornelius Corfield, at 72 Erie street. He purchased small articles and tendered counterfeit silver dollars in payment.

After Dalton left Corfield discovered the counterfeit and followed Dalton and had him arrested. The other two men identified him as the one who had passed bad money on them. On his way to the station-house Dalton threw away two counterfeit silver dollars.

Dalton was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A Constable Has a Chase.

Constable Barrett, of Justice of the Peace Douglas's court in Jersey City, had a lively chase early this morning after a wagon containing the furniture of Michael Hatch, of Sussex street, Jersey City. Hatch owed his landlord for rent, and the latter secured an attachment against the furniture. He moved out, and was fast getting away when overtaken at the Hoboken ferry.

Trying to Settle a Strike.

The striking silk weavers of Governor's silk mill in West Hoboken, met this morning and discussed the strike. The three weavers arrested last night intending were discharged this morning. Chairman McMahon and the other members of the New Jersey State Board of Arbitration are trying to settle the strike.

YELLOW FEVER AT SEA.

Dark Fantee Lost One Sailor, and Had Sails Blown Away.

The Boston bark Fantee, Capt. Ulmer, arrived at this port to-day from Grand Canoe Island with a cargo of phosphate rock.

Capt. Ulmer reports that on March 31, while on the run from Rio Janeiro to Grand Canoe Island, Hans Ingvertsen, seaman, a native of Denmark, seventeen years old, was stricken with yellow fever, from which he died. His body was buried at sea. The rest of the crew escaped contagion.

On June 7, when off Cape Hatteras, the Fantee encountered a heavy north-west squall and lost several sails.

SHERER MAY DIE.

Said to Have Been Struck with a Car by Another Boy.

Coroner Kene, of Brooklyn, was summoned this morning to the City Hospital to take the ante-mortem statement of William Sherer, aged fourteen, of 143 Twenty-third street. Several days ago Sherer got into a fight with Philip Boone, aged eighteen, of Fourth avenue and Twenty-sixth street.

Boone, it is alleged, struck him with a tomato can, inflicting a scalp wound, which the doctors said was not serious. Yesterday the boy became worse and he was sent to the hospital.
